

ID Info Guide

Making first responders aware of a person's communication and behavioral challenges is critical in situations where both could be key to public safety. The options below are potential life savers for families whose loved ones may go missing or find themselves in danger.

Medical ID Bracelets

MedicAlert - www.medicalert.com

The MedicAlert emblems are engraved with the individual's MedicAlert Member ID, primary medical conditions and MedicAlert's 24-Hour Emergency Response Center number.

ROAD ID- www.roadid.com

This interactive version of this item allows you to enter a comprehensive medical profile that first responders can access by calling the phone number on the band and providing the personal ID number engraved on the band. This service is $10 a year, plus the cost of the ID.

Wearable ID Products

Many individuals will not wear jewelry but still need an ID. Or, your special person may need a wearable identification when wallet IDs aren't practical, such as at the beach. Below are some good options.

If I need Help - <https://ifineedhelp.org/>

This company sells items that have all the information about your loved one on a QR code. The parent/caregiver has total control of what information to enter into their special needs registry, which can be emailed or sent to first responders.

Alert Me Bands - www.alertmebands.com

These bands are fully customizable allowing medical, special needs and allergy alerts to be added to any of their hundreds of designs. They guarantee that a child under 5 cannot take off the band.

ROAD ID- www.roadid.com

This company has many designs and styles to choose from. They engrave the band with the information you provide.

Custom Silicone Wristbands - www.reminderband.com

This company offers custom made silicone bands that can be ordered in quantities as few as 1. You can place ID information and your cell number on the band.

Wristband Connection - www.wristbandconnection.com

These are custom made silicone bands, including medical alerts bands, with your information. You can order as few as one.

Safety Tat Safety Tattoos - www.safetytat.com

No matter where or what you do, there's a SafetyTat product to ensure the safety of your child or loved one. Temporary Tattoos can be especially good on field trips or vacations.

The CARE Card - www.gocit.org/care-cards.html

The CARE Card is a custom-made medical alert identification card designed to educate those you come in contact with on any special needs you may have in a respectful way.

Autism ID Card - <http://autismidcard.com>

The Autism ID card helps people on the autism spectrum explain their medical condition to Police, EMTs, and other first responders in the event of an emergency.

POAC Information Cards - www.poac.net

POAC Autism Services has "My Child has Autism" and "I Have Autism" information cards available free of charge. Parents can use the "My Child has Autism" cards to alert others as needed in public settings and the individual with autism can use the "I have Autism" card in contacts with police or first responders. Contact the POAC office to order.

MediPal Seatbelt ID - <https://medipal.com>

The MediPal Seatbelt ID gives immediate access to a patient's critical health and contact information by first responders

Seat Belt Emergency ID Straps - www.rescuefacts.com

Seat Belt Emergency I.D. Straps allow you to fill out facts about your child for first responders.

There are several types of Governmental Identification Cards available in almost every region. These can include non-driver identification cards issued by your local Division of Motor Vehicle Department, or county special needs cards. Please contact your local municipality to find out what is available in your area.
